TICKET NOMINATED.

Report of Labor Day's Democratic Convention--The Yerkes Resolutions--The Collapsed Bank's Affairs.

The judiciary ring held what it called a Democratic county convention here on Monday. It was the tamest affair that party has had in a long time. There was no enthusiasm, no excitement. The confidence and enthusiasm it was predicted the judiciary candidate's letter of acceptance would inspire were not manifested. It was a mere display of hands on the part of the ring men. Packed in Lenape Hall the Democrats were few and far between. The meeting of stockholders has been held at which Judge Olden presided. The Governor, and William C. Ryan, Esq., of Doylestown, chairman of the meeting, explained what could be accomplished by reorganization. It was explained to the stockholders that $220,000 could be required to enable the bank to resume. Judge Olden stated that under reorganization the bank would be able to collect probably 20 per cent of the assets that a receiver could collect if the matter were left in his hands and a new bank established. To reorganize would require an assessment of a little more than $75 per share. Not only would the stockholders have an opportunity to save their money but the funds of depositors, many 6,000 people, would be immediately released and paid in full if demanded by the bank's reorganization. This, in fact, would be a most important consideration, as depositors have been unable to get their money back for a long period but that it could not be collected in full. There has been the prevalent feeling among the stockholders to demolish the present bank and to reorganize. The project has been much encouraged and reorganization looks like success at this writing. It is thoroughly understood that the Government will permit the bank to resume under its former management. In this respect it will be practically a new bank. Upon deciding to resume the stockholders will elect a Board of Directors and they will elect the President and Cashier. The stockholders appointed T. O. Atkinson, of the Bucks County Trust Co.; Henry O. Harris, of the Doylestown Trust Co.; and Wesley Keeler, of Trenton, as directors. The President and Cashier, Mr. Worthington and William Watson, a committee empowered to appoint a subcommittee of three to examine into the bank's affairs in detail, with the Government's permission, and to report at another meeting of the stockholders. Information the Government will impart will not, however, be made public, but the committee will be possessed of sufficient facts to enable the stockholders to decide whether it will be expedient to organize. The latter, therefore, view the situation hopefully and naturally depositors are reassured with the prospect of early release of their money, dollar for dollar.
